Mercury Advisory from Wisconsin DNR

Safe-eating guidelines for most of Wisconsin's Inland (non-Great Lakes) waters

|--|---|
| Women of childbearing years, nursing mothers and all children under 15 may eat: | Women beyond their childbearing years and men may eat: |
| 1 meal per week - bluegill, sunfish, croppies, yellow perch, or bullheads | Unlimited amounts - bluegill, sunfish, croppies, yellow perch, or bullheads |
| and | and |
| 1 meal per month - walleye, northern pike, bass, catfish, or any other species. | 1 meal per week - walleye, northern pike, bass, catfish, or any other species. |

(Note: Muskies should not be eaten by this group or people due to high mercury content).

On certain waters more restrictive advice is needed because fish have been found to contain higher levels of mercury or PCB's. Advisories apply only to eating your catch and in no way restrict your fishing or other water activities.

Ride the Lumberjack STEAM TRAIN
To Historic Logging Camp

Take the Lumberjack Steam Train to the museum complex and spend the day having fun & learning! Watch a blacksmith work, take in the animal barn & petting corral, the nature center with its mounted displays, the old time Cracker Barrel Store for gifts, & a great museum covering the early days of logging in Forest County. Don't forget to take the Green Treasure Forest tour by guided surrey, and learn about modern sustained yield forestry. The Hayrack/Pontoon trip through a natural wildlife refuge is fun as well as a learning experience, & there is food on the grounds at the Choo-Choo Hut.

Faster than a speeding bullet. More powerful than a locomotive. No it's not Superman - these "men of steel" are LUMBERJACKS!
Captivating audiences for the past 25 years, Timberworks Lumberjack Show Powered by STIHL provides images of man against the impossible along with the sport derived out of a nation's heritage.

The Show includes such events as axe throwing, chopping, log rolling, cross cut sawing, hot sawing and chainsaw carving. These century old skills were used in the logging camps of North America. To pass idle time, lumberjacks would challenge each other in a head-to-head competition. Although technology and machinery have replaced manual labor, the skills are still used today by the Lumberjacks in the STIHL Timberworks Lumberjack Show.

Feel the rush of adrenaline as competitors race up poles at lightning speed or saw through twelve inches of aspen with the speed of a modern day chain saw. Then move to the edge of your seat as competitors show off their fancy footwork while running on logs or axe throw with the precision of a dart board champion.

Timberworks Lumberjack Shows has been featured on ABC's Wide World of Sports, TNN, ESPN Jeep Trails, Discovery Channel's "The Travelers," MTV's The Real World and Road Rules and the Family Channel and the Outdoor Life Network. Drawing live audiences of over one million combined, Timberworks Lumberjack Shows is an exciting and entertaining adventure providing a unique blend of sports, history and comedy and includes an opportunity for the audience to experience a nostalgic logging competition of the early 1900s.

Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest Reminds us about Restrictions to Help Slow Spread of Emerald Ash Borer (EAB)

The campgrounds are now open all across the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest (CNNF) and firewood restrictions are in place to slow the spread of Emerald Ash Borer (EAB). This invasive beetle loves to travel on firewood so please leave firewood at home, unless you live within 25 miles of your National Forest destination.

The firewood restriction is one way of slowing the spread of Emerald Ash Borer, an exotic beetle from Asia that kills ash trees. This invasive insect's larva kills ash trees by destroying the soft layer of wood just under the bark.

Since 2002, EAB has spread to thirteen states, including Wisconsin and two Canadian provinces. While Federal and State agencies are doing what they can to prevent new infestation sites and slow the spread, the insect continues to be discovered in new locations. Movement of infested wood or nursery stock being transported from one location to another is likely the cause of new infestations beyond normal dispersal patterns of the insect. The risk of an EAB infestation on the National Forest within several years even with quarantines and firewood restrictions is very high.

Acceptable firewood to bring to the CNNF includes:

- Wood gathered from within the Forest with a valid permit
- Firewood purchased from a vendor within 25 miles of the national forest destination or brought from home that same distance
- Wood that has been certified by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (certified wood can be brought into the Forest from a distance of more than 25 miles)

---In addition, state and federal laws forbid moving hardwood firewood out of emerald ash borer quarantined areas. Currently, this means hardwood firewood that has been stored, purchased, or harvested in the following areas may not be moved out of these areas in Wisconsin: Brown, Crawford, Vernon, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, Washington, Ozaukee, Milwaukee, Waukesha, Kenosha, La Crosse, and Racine counties. A federal quarantine also prohibits the movement of hardwood firewood out of all or parts of more than a dozen other states and parts of Canada.

For more information about the about EAB visit <http://datcpservices.wisconsin.gov/eab/index.jsp>

Tickborne diseases remain a threat in Wisconsin

May is Lyme Disease Awareness Month; State Officials Urge Precautions

MADISON Wisconsin's warm spring weather will mean more blacklegged tick activity, which could start earlier due to a milder winter. State officials are urging people to take precautions now against tick bites when spending time outdoors. In Wisconsin, infected blacklegged ticks (also known as deer ticks) can carry the bacteria that cause Lyme disease and other tickborne diseases, and these diseases are increasing, according to Dr. Henry Anderson, State Health Officer. In 2011, there was a preliminary report of 4,123 confirmed and probable cases of tickborne diseases compared with 4,073 cases in 2010.

Recognizing and treating tickborne diseases early is important, Anderson noted. Signs and symptoms of Lyme disease, the state's most frequently reported tickborne illness, may occur 3 days to 30 days after the bite of an infected tick and can include a characteristic rash called an erythema migrans (EM) rash, fever and chills, fatigue, headache, muscle and joint pain, and swollen lymph nodes. The rash is circular and red initially and expands over several days, though it may not occur in all cases. The disease is easily treated with antibiotics when detected early. If left untreated, Lyme disease can result in debilitating arthritis, and serious heart and nervous system complications.

Other tickborne illnesses range from mild to severe and include anaplasmosis, the state's second highest reported tickborne illness, babesiosis, ehrlichiosis, and Powassan virus disease. Signs and symptoms of these illnesses can include fever, chills, sweats, muscle aches, joint pain, headache, fatigue, nausea and vomiting, and loss of appetite. Severe cases can include a change in mental status, paralysis and coma, and can be fatal. Unlike anaplasmosis, ehrlichiosis and babesiosis, Powassan virus infections are not treatable with antibiotics.

These steps can help prevent tick bites and reduce the chance of getting tickborne diseases:

- Avoid wooded and bushy areas with high grass and leaf litter since ticks prefer these areas. Stay to the center of a trail to avoid contact with grass and brush.
- Use effective tick repellents and apply according to the label instructions. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends using repellents with 20% DEET on exposed skin and clothing to prevent tick bites. Adults should apply repellents to children, taking special care to avoid spraying in the hands, eyes, and mouth. Repellents that contain permethrin can also be applied to clothing.
- Wear clothes that will help shield you from ticks. Long-sleeved shirts and long pants are best. Tuck your pants into the top of your socks or boots, to create a "tick barrier." Light-colored clothing makes ticks easier to spot.
- Landscape homes and recreational areas to reduce the number of ticks and create tick-safe zones by using woodchips or gravel along the border between lawn and wooded areas. Continue to remove leaf litter and clear tall grass and brush around houses throughout the summer.
- Check your body frequently for ticks, and remove them promptly. Blacklegged ticks are small and may be difficult to find so careful and thorough tick checks must be done on all parts of the body. It is important to pay special attention to areas where ticks tend to hide such as the head, scalp, and body folds (armpit, behind the knee, groin).
- Remove attached ticks slowly and gently, using a pair of thin-bladed tweezers applied as close to the skin as possible. Folk remedies like petroleum jelly, nail polish remover, or burning matches are not safe or effective ways to remove ticks.
- Protect your pets from tick bites by checking your dog or cat for ticks before allowing them inside. While a vaccine can prevent Lyme disease in pets, it will not stop the animal from carrying infected ticks into the home. Speak to your veterinarian about topical tick repellent available for pets.
