Nicolet’s Manufacturing in Motion van coming to Crandon Oct. 13

Nicolet College will take a preview of its Welding and Manufacturing programs on the road in October to give interested individuals the chance to learn about careers in these high-demand fields.

Nicolet’s new Manufacturing in Motion van, complete with a high-tech welding simulator for people to try, will roll into Crandon for a stop at Schaefer’s IGA, 600 E. Pioneer St., from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Thursday, October 13.

“There’s strong job demand across the Northwoods for individuals with solid manufacturing skills,” said Jeff Labs, dean of Trade, Industry, and Apprenticeships at Nicolet. “Visiting the Manufacturing van, talking with Nicolet staff, and trying out the welding simulator will give people the chance to see if this career field is right for them.

Nicolet offers seven different academic credentials that fall under the Manufacturing umbrella. These include short-term training certificates, diplomas, and two-year associate degrees.

“We’ve structured the programs so students can earn an academic credential in their field of study relatively quickly,” Labs explained. “Many students then use this credential, typically a certificate, to get a job in the field and continue taking classes to learn more advanced skills.”

He noted this pathway sets many students up for success.

“Students receive on-the-job experience, they’re earning an income, and they’re receiving that higher level of training that will allow them to advance in the field, which commonly leads to higher pay.”

Nicolet Welding graduates with an associate’s degree typically receive an entry-level wage of $14 to $16 an hour. Those with an associate’s degree in Industrial Maintenance, Applied Science or Technician programs commonly start earning $20 an hour or more.

Financial aid and scholarships are available for eligible students to help cover the cost of tuition, fees, and books.

Information about the college’s manufacturing academic programs can be found at nicoletcollege.edu or by calling (715) 365-4493, 1-800-544-3039; TTY 1-800-947-3529 or 711 relay.

Crandon Library News

The Crandon Library was recognized for it part in the health education of the community in the national magazine Library Journal. The following is an excerpt from that article. Congratulations to Michelle Gobert and the staff of the Crandon Public Library!

Proactive and Pro Active

Crandon Public Library (CPL), began expanding its health programming in 2011, when Director Michelle Gobert was invited to participate in the Forest County Health Department’s five-year strategic planning session.

“It was the first time I had heard about county health rankings and the different scientific-based programming that was being done across the state to promote a healthier lifestyle,” she recalls. As a result, CPL’s efforts to promote wellness among the 6,004 people it serves emphasize nutrition and exercise.

Alzheimer’s Association October Family Education programs

Family programs are open to all at no charge

Each month, the Alzheimer’s Association offers family education programs across Wisconsin. These programs are free-of-charge and open to families, caregivers and the general community. Each program is presented by an Alzheimer’s Association staff member or trained community volunteer. These programs are made possible, in part, by funds raised through the Walk to End Alzheimer’s.

Pre-registration is encouraged. Please call 1.800.272.3900 to reserve your seat. Class details can be found online at www.alz.org/gwwi or call the Alzheimer’s Association 24/7 Helpline at 800-272-3900.

One program of note is the October program offering.

Effective Communication Strategies

This month’s programs focus on the natural progression of Alzheimer’s and its other types of dementia. Effective communication strategies are learning to decode messages through tone of voice, facial expression and body language.

Tuesday, October 11, 1:00 – 3:00 pm

Oneida Senior Center, 100 Keenan Street, Rhinelander

Wednesday, October 12, 1:30 – 2:30 pm

Sonny said they had more and better food than the Germans ever did. During the time the war was going on, there was no need to eat anything because of their hunger. He said that the Germans had more and better food than the Americans did. During the war, there was no need to eat anything because of their hunger.

Sonny worked a variety of jobs, and one of the many jobs he had was working at the Crandon Mine. He said the mine was located along the Mississippi River, where he and his family had a home. He described the mine as a large and complex operation, with many different areas to work in. He also said that the mine was a very dangerous place to work, with many accidents occurring.

After working at the mine, Sonny decided to start his own business. He opened a small grocery store in Crandon, where he and his family lived. He said the store was very successful, and he enjoyed being able to work for himself. The store was located on the corner of Main Street and First Avenue, and it was a very popular place in the town.

One day, Sonny received a call from the Mine Office. They told him that there was a need for extra food in the area, and they were looking for someone to come and help. Sonny said he didn't have a lot of extra food, but he did have some spare chickens. He told them he would come and bring them over to the mine.

When Sonny arrived at the mine, he was surprised to find that there were many other families in the area who were in need of extra food. He said he was glad he had come, because it was able to help so many people.

Sonny said that working at the mine was not easy, but it was something he enjoyed doing. He said he was able to help many people, and he was glad he could do it.

Sonny said that he had a lot of friends in the area, and he enjoyed spending time with them. He said he was glad he could help them in any way he could.

Sonny said that he was proud of his family, and he was glad that they were able to help others in need. He said that it was important to help others, because it was the right thing to do.

Sonny said that he had many memories from his time at the mine, and he was glad he was able to share them. He said that the mine was a very special place, and he was glad he could help others in any way he could.

It is no longer acceptable to bring along a child to represent your vote. It is important to note that over 56,000 direct jobs and another 50,000 jobs produced in other sectors can be attributed to the Forest Products Industry contributing over 3 Billion in payroll per year. The harvest actually declined during his tenure. He did nothing to help an Industry so important to the State’s economy, and so important to the health of Wisconsin National Forests. It is important to the health of Wisconsin National Forests in 18 years. How can he possibly make those false claims if he failed us so consistently in the 18 years he was in Washington? Yes voters, 18 years with a failing record.

Feingold states in his campaign ads how he intends to help Wisconsin Workers if he gets back to Washington. Feingold did not have one solid accomplishment that helped the people of Wisconsin in 18 years. How can he possibly make those false claims if he failed us so consistently in the 18 years he was in Washington? Yes voters, 18 years with a failing record. For example each year Feingold would visit each County in the State, I personally attended 16 of those 18 Town Hall Meetings in Forest County and carried the message regarding the lack of Timber Harvesting and management on our National Forests. The harvest actually declined during his tenure. He did nothing to help an Industry so important to the State’s economy, and so important to the health of Wisconsin National Forests.

Extended trout season lures anglers for fall fishing

MADISON, Wis. - While state forests may be showing off their brightly colored fall foliage these days, many Wisconsin trout anglers will be setting their sights on rainbows, browns and the multi-hued spots of brook trout this year.

Thanks to the feedback and support from trout anglers statewide, for the first time this fall, the trout fishing season on inland streams and connected springs has been extended to Oct. 15 from the Sept. 30 closure of previous years. The expanded fall harvest period joins an extended catch and release season that now starts the first Saturday in January and runs through the Friday preceding the first Saturday in May.

Joanna Griffin, trout coordinator for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, said the expanded fishing opportunities, simplified rules and new online TROUT tool to help anglers find places to fish resulted from growing recognition of the importance of trout fishing to local communities statewide.

"Healthy trout streams draw anglers from a broader region into communities," Griffin said. "We know many anglers enjoyed the opportunity to get out this spring for the early catch and release season and we hope they'll also spend some time visiting our world-class trout waters this fall.

Shared efforts by property owners, angling groups such as Trout Unlimited and DNR have contributed to very real improvements in Wisconsin’s current 13,232 miles of trout streams. About 40 percent or 5,289 miles of the state's trout streams carry the coveted Class 1 designation, meaning these streams sustain healthy populations of wild trout through natural reproduction and require no stocking. Brook trout are native to Wisconsin and DNR also stocks rainbow and brown trout.

Heath Benike, a DNR fisheries supervisor based in Eau Claire, said trout populations in Western Wisconsin are strong at this time, providing anglers with ample opportunities throughout the Driftless Area this fall. Anglers who haven't visited the area in some time also may want to check out some of the important habitat improvements that have taken place.

"DNR habitat restoration crews were able to complete numerous stream restoration projects this field season," Benike said. "Anglers who want to check out these areas should venture to Gilbert and Sand Creeks in Dunn County, Fall Creek in Pepin County, Swins Valley Creek in Buffalo County, Beaver Creek in Trempealeau County and Spring Coulee, Weister and Tainter Creeks in the LaCrosse Area.

The northeast region of the state also promises some great fall fishing. Mike Donofrio, a DNR fisheries supervisor based in Pendarvis, covers the northeast region, said this year's wet weather has been a boon for fish in the rivers of his region.

"Trout populations are doing well in the six county region here in northeastern Wisconsin," Donofrio said. "I think anglers are excited about the additional opportunities related to the extended season," Donofrio said. At the same time, the simplified rules put in place this year also may be encouraging anglers to participate.

"Comments collected as part of an extensive review of inland trout fishing regulations launched in 2011 showed anglers were interested in more quality fishing opportunities, less confusing regulations and fewer special regulations. The resulting new, simplified system, features maps online and in the trout regulation pamphlet that indicate one of three regulations.

Green means go fish, with no length limit, a bag limit of five fish and no bait restrictions; and

Yellow means caution, with an 8 inch length limit, a bag limit of three fish and no bait restrictions; and

Red means special regulations are in place. Anglers are advised to stop and understand restrictions; indicate one of three regulations:

In addition to a resident or nonresident general fishing license, trout anglers need to purchase an inland trout stamp or Great Lakes salmon and trout stamp. Licenses are available through more than 1,000 vendors statewide or online by visiting GoWild.wi.gov. To learn more about the regulations, visit dnr.wi.gov and search "trout review." Strong, committed leadership needed to destroy ISIS

By Senator Ron Johnson

Thanks to swift action by law enforcement officers, no innocent American lives were lost in the string of terrorist incidents last weekend. A knife-wielding attacker in a Minnesota department store was shot by a brave off-duty officer. Authorities swiftly identified, then caught, a suspect in bombings in New York and New Jersey. It was great police work. The men and women who risk their lives to protect us deserve our gratitude.

But what they face is disconcerting. America experienced multiple attacks with multiple bombs in a city that suffered the worst attack our nation has ever endured, as well as what appeared to be a “lone wolf” intent on mayhem in a small city in the heartland that until now saw terrorism only at a distance.

But will these attacks be largely forgotten and ignored months from now? As I travel my home state, I ask Wisconsinites if they remember the name Samy Mohamed Hamzeh. Few do. But just last January, he was charged with planning to slaughter people at a Masonic center in Milwaukee. “If I got out after killing 300, I will be happy 100%,” he was recorded as saying.

This must not become the “new normal,” yet the list of targeted cities grows: St. Cloud, Minn.; New York; Elizabeth, N.J.; Seaside Park, N.J.; Milwaukee; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Orlando, Fla.; San Bernardino, Calif. This threat is real, growing, metastasizing and evolving. Americans have been deficient in laying out a strategy and fully committing to success. I doubt that will change before he leaves office, so the burden will be passed to our next president.

Defeating ISIS is only the first step, but one we must take. This is the result of inadequate leadership and a lack of commitment to the goal. The Obama administration has failed to act effectively against the root cause of these attacks, which is ISIS and Islamic terrorism. I liken it to finding that a swarm of bees has settled in your back yard. Instead of eliminating the hive, Obama is merely poking it with a stick, stirring it up, dispersing the swarm, and allowing the bees to set up new nests. His airstrikes have not wiped out ISIS. They’ve made it harder for would-be fighters to travel to ISIS’s Middle East stronghold, so now we see ISIS telling sympathizers to “kill where you are.”

As long as ISIS and its self-proclaimed caliphate exists, it will continue to inspire attacks. As long as ISIS is not seen as losing, young men will believe it is winning — and they will detonate pipe bombs in streets and stab people in malls.

ISIS must be destroyed. An effective effort will start with American leadership — the kind of leadership then-President George H.W. Bush displayed in 1991 during the first Gulf War, clearly stating the objective and assembling a committed coalition of the willing. It is underappreciated today that our allies bore 85 percent of the cost and contributed 200,000 troops to that successful effort to free Kuwait. We must destroy ISIS, and if America leads effectively, we won’t have to defeat them alone.

The objective should be clear: deny ISIS any territory, destroying the “caliphate” that provides inspiration to its believers. We must then relentlessly hunt down terrorists wherever they have found safe haven. This is not a quick and easy task. We are engaged in a generational struggle.

Obama’s premature withdrawal from Iraq was a strategic blunder of historic proportions. He failed to learn the lessons that history taught us in Germany, Japan and South Korea: After a victory, a stabilizing force of America’s troops is needed to consolidate the peace our soldiers’ sacrifices had gained. Iraq was, as Joe Biden said in 2010, a success. Al Qaeda in Iran was defeated and a stable, peaceful country was a realistic possibility.

Then we bugged out, and ISIS arose from the ashes of what was a thoroughly defeated al Qaeda. Now ISIS’s disciples have slaughtered Americans at a Christmas party in California and a nightclub in Florida, and tried to do so in a mail in Minnesota and a Masonic center in Wisconsin.

To be clear: I do not blame the president, I blame Islamic terrorists. Obama stated the correct goal but has been deficient in laying out a strategy and fully committing to success. I doubt that will change before he leaves office, so the burden will be passed to our next president.

Defeating ISIS is only the first step, but one we must take if we ever hope to come out from under this cloud of constant threat.

Johnson is chairman of the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee.

ERASING THE WALLS OF POVERTY - A COMMUNITY PROJECT

On the Cover: Betc34

With the help of the health department, Ties That Bind Us, launched a running program, now called Community Kickstart. Seventy-four people registered for the nine-week training session, and about 50 percent completed a planned 5K run. The program was repeated with even greater success in 2015.

The library also partnered with the health department on children’s programming, a Thanksgiving story hour featured a book about cranberries, an activity, and a demonstration on making a healthy cranberry salad by the Forest County Health Department director. Some 30-35 children and adults attended.

CPL has received a stipend from OCLC as part of its Health Happens in Libraries initiative, and in May, 2015, CPL produced iron Chef-Healthy Fruits & Vegetables Edition with the help of the health department, Ties That Bind Us, Forest County Coalition on Activity and Nutrition (Forest County CANS)-CPL is a member, and the Crandon School District. The competition was held at a local school cafeteria, where 15 participants created healthy dishes.

Finally, this past spring, the library partnered with Forest County Ties That Bind Us for the organization’s Color of Cancer Run. The event raised more than $18,000 for the nonprofit, which then donated $3,000 to the library for use in youth programming.

“Partnering with our local health department on specific initiatives has made a huge impact within our community,” Gubert says. “The library is now seen as a community partner...It has allowed us to be part of the conversation and therefore part of the solution.”

This is just loaded with talent from around the world and also from right here in our own backyard,” said Nicolet College Theatre Director Jim Nuttall. “We always strive to offer a broad and diverse range of performances to make sure that there’s something that will appeal to everyone.”

World-class musical groups from South Africa and China will perform throughout the Northwoods as part of Nicolet’s two-year partnership with Arts Midwest.

Lorraine Klaesen will bring her signature swing-groove Township Music sound from South Africa to Nicolet Saturday, Nov. 19. And on Saturday, Feb. 18, Andrea Union from the Inner Mongolia region of China will showcase its rich and mesmerizing nomadic music.

“Both of these groups feature outstanding entertainers and cultural ambassadors and each will spend a week in the area visiting schools and communities,” Nuttall noted.

The Emmy-Award winning cappella group Tonic Sol-Fa will kick off the season with a special performance at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 29, in the Nicolet Theatre. Hailed by The New York Times as “a kaleidoscope, unique to the human voice,” this popular trio has sold out concerts over 1 million albums and appeared on The Tonight Show with Jay Leno and NBC’s Today Show.

Local musicians will also be well represented in the upcoming Nicolet Live! season with the ever-popular Community Holiday Concert Sunday, Dec. 11, An Evening with Dave Driver and Friends Thursday, Jan. 24, the Community Music Festival Sunday, March 12, and An Evening with Tress and Chris and Friends Thursday, June 8.

There are many “movies with a message” that are being added to the schedule this year. The Forest County Elderly Benefits Specialist, Kathy O’Melia, has a new local telephone number. Kathy can be reached at 715-478-3067.

For reservations please call the bus driver for that day.

See orange cones? Put down the phones!

1. A new Wisconsin law took effect Saturday, October 1, 2016, making it illegal to talk on a hand-held mobile device while driving through a work zone. The law is part of Wisconsin’s continued efforts to reduce distracted driving and enhance highway safety.

“Holding a phone up to the ear takes precious attention away from the road,” says David Pabst, director of the WisDOT Bureau of Transportation Safety. “In a work zone, there are narrow, shifting lanes and there is a lot of activity occurring in a condensed space. It’s vitally important that drivers stay focused and alert at all times.”

Drivers face fines of up to $40 on first offense and up to $100 for subsequent offenses. The law applies to anyone operating a motor vehicle within a work zone, including commercial drivers and workers. There’s a simple rule to ensure compliance with the law: “See orange cones? Put down the phones!”

Mobile device use continues to be a leading cause of distracted driving. Texting while driving already is illegal in Wisconsin. The hand-held device law builds on efforts to enhance safety by creating an additional tool to curtail inattentive driving.

From 2011 to 2015, 47 people have been killed and 750 injuries resulting from 2,411 work zone crashes. Motorists and passengers suffer the vast majority of injuries and deaths.

“Distracted driving kills indiscriminately, but each of us has the opportunity to do the right thing for safety out on the road,” says Pabst. “The more we work to eliminate distractions and focus on driving, the safer each of us will be.”

There is an exemption granted in the event a motorist must use a hand-held mobile device to call 911. Bluetooth and hands-free devices remain legal to use while driving through a work zone, but drivers are encouraged to refrain from phone calls altogether to give undivided attention to the road.

“A lot can happen—fast—out on the highway,” says Pabst. “100 people travel 55 mph covers the length of a football field in less than five seconds.”

Last month tied for safest month of September in terms of traffic deaths since the end of WWII

Last month, 45 people died in traffic crashes on Wisconsin roads, which tied it for the safest month of September in terms of traffic deaths since the end of World War II, according to preliminary statistics from the Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT). The deadliest month of September was in 1973 with 116 deaths.

Traffic fatalities last month were 23 fewer than September 2015 and 13 fewer than the five-year average for the month of September.

As of September 30, a total of 440 people have died in Wisconsin traffic crashes this year, including 67 motorcyclist operators, five motorcycle passengers, 33 pedestrians and 10 bicyclists. Traffic deaths September were 18 more than the same period in 2015 and 28 more than the five-year average.

“September was a very wet month in many areas of the state, which may have reduced traffic and as a result moderated the number of serious traffic crashes,” says David Pabst, director of the WisDOT Bureau of Transportation Safety. “In coming months, drivers will need to transition to dwindling hours of daylight and the potential for inclement weather. We’re reminding drivers that they will need to use their headlights to see traffic and road conditions as well as be seen by other drivers. In addition, a recently enacted state law requires headlight use when weather conditions limit visibility to 500 feet or less.”

Thanks again for everyone who took the time and effort to help them accomplish this.
