Are invasive species lurking in your woods? Find out!

Vast, thriving forests are the pinnacle of the Northwoods, but these natural areas are under constant threat of invasion. Invasive species harm natural ecosystems by disrupting diversity, function, and health, as well as causing economic damage (logging industry impacts, cost of control efforts, etc.). Forests are often invaded by species such as Garlic Mustard, Japanese Barberry, Buckthorn, Autumn Olive, and many more. These species grow aggressively and can impact wildlife habitat and food sources, as well as recreational use of the area. Often times, these species can spread unnoticed for some time in secluded areas and once discovered, the cost and effort needed to control these species can be quite demanding. Therefore it is important to monitor these valuable ecosystems and detect infestations of invasive species early on to increase the chances of effective control.

Recognizing this need, the Wild Rivers Invasive Species Coalition (WRISC) obtained a Wisconsin DNR WMA Grant to conduct invasive species inventories on private forest lands in Forest, Florence, and Marinette Counties. Private forest land owners with up to 500 acres can participate in the project and will receive a free survey of their forest land and a map of invasive locations on their property. If invasive species are discovered, WRISC will provide information on how best to control the species and if a priority species is discovered, rapid response control will also be conducted by WRISC staff.

If you are interested in participating in this project, please contact Lindsay at (906) 774-1550 x 102 or wildriverscwma@gmail.com.

Ruffed Grouse Society Nicolet/Wild Rivers Chapter 26th Annual Conservation and Sportsmen's Banquet

Ruffed grouse hunters and others who like to have a good meal and a good time, as well as win some nice prizes, should plan now to attend the Ruffed Grouse Society banquet at the Crandon Community Building on Saturday, March 25th.

The doors open at 5:15 and the banquet will begin at 7:15. The individual membership and dinner ticket is $50, but if you want to bring your spouse, it is $70. A junior membership ticket, age 17 and under, is $25. If you also want to be a member of the American Woodcock Society, you can pay $25 and have a membership in both, and help support the habitat that produces the birds we all love to hunt.

There are a number of ticket packages available if you buy early. For example, an Early Bird package gives the buyer $220 in tickets for $150. The Double Early Bird and receive $420 in tickets for $300.

It isn't settled yet, but there should be a some guns raffled off, and if you're lucky, the price is great!

Roger Spaude, Lakewood, sent in this great picture of a red fox. The fox is likely looking for something to eat, and the mice better be cautious!

Explore Culinary Arts careers at Nicolet's Open House March 9

Anyone considering a career in the Culinary Arts is invited to attend an Open House at Nicolet College Thursday, March 9, to get a taste of the program and meet with students and instructors to see if the field is right for them.

The event will take place from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Northwoods Center on the Rhinelander Campus.

For second-year Culinary Arts student Dan Resch, the personalized attention that comes from small class sizes and highly qualified instructors were major draws to enroll at Nicolet.

"You receive so much one-on-one time with the instructors that you really get a solid understanding of what they are teaching," Resch said. "The instructors know the business inside and out and they share that knowledge with anyone who wants it. You learn everything from the basics to the more advanced techniques that you need to know to have a successful career in the field."

Nicolet's Culinary Arts program is structured with students first earning short-term certificates. These then serve as stepping stones to the one-year technical diploma and then the two-year associate's degree.

Oftentimes, students will use the certificates to land an entry-level job in the field and continue taking classes to learn the skills for more advanced positions.

"This way students can earn money, gain experience, and also get the college credentials that will move them farther ahead in life," said Nicolet Culinary Arts Instructor Kevin Brown.

Nicolet also recently entered into a credit transfer agreement with the University of Wisconsin-Stout that creates the pathway for students to earn a bachelor's degree in Hotel, Restaurant, and Tourism Management.

"The beauty of this is students can complete the entire bachelor's degree while living in the Northwoods," Brown explained.

"They take a combination of Culinary Arts and University Transfer Liberal Arts classes at Nicolet and then complete the remaining 40 credits through online classes offered by UW-Stout."

For more information about Nicolet's Culinary Arts program or the Open House, visit nicoletcollege.edu or call (715) 365-4493; TTY 1-800-947-3529 or 711.

Anglers urged to pull ice shacks before deadlines - or ice gives way!

MADISON -- Winter's recent string of spring temperatures and thinning ice has state recreational safety specialists encouraging anglers to remove their ice fishing shelters prior to the official deadlines.

The first in a series of deadlines for ice anglers to remove ice fishing shelters from inland and boundary waters was February 20--the date for the Wisconsin-Iowa boundary waters, affecting the Mississippi River south of the Minnesota-Iowa border. This date corresponded with Iowa regulations.

Other fast-approaching deadlines to remove all fishing shelters from the ice are:

- Wednesday, March 1 for the Wisconsin-Minnesota boundary waters
- Sunday, March 5 for waters south of Highway 64
- Wednesday, March 15 for Wisconsin-Michigan boundary waters.
- Sunday, March 19 for waters north of Highway 64 -

Auditions March 13, 14 for Nicolet Players' Arsenic and Old Lace

Lonely old gentlemen, beware! Sisters Abby and Martha Brewster are back to their old tricks and will bring their diabolical ways to the Nicolet College Theatre when the Nicolet Players present Arsenic and Old Lace this May. The community theatre troupe will hold auditions March 13 and 14 for the roles of Abby and Martha and about a dozen other characters for this play regarded as one of the finest American comedies of the 20th Century. Auditions each night will start at 7 p.m. in the Nicolet College Theatre. "The play has such great characters and the storyline has so many witty and funny twists and turns that I just had to bring this one to the stage," said Nicolet College Theatre Director Jim Nuttall.

While the two sisters are known far and wide for their kind and charitable acts, they suddenly take a turn to the dark side and start luring in lonely old men only to poison them with arsenic-laced elderberry wine.

When their nephew Mortimer comes to visit, he discovers that murder is the family's M.O and drives himself crazy trying to cover up the nefarious crimes and keep everyone from serving the rest of their lives in prison. There are 14 roles for both men and women ranging in age from about 20 on up through their 60s.

As always, everyone is welcome to audition. Those interested do not need any acting experience and they do not need to be Nicolet students. No preparation is required, but actors are typically better prepared if they have read the script beforehand, Nuttall added. Scripts are available for a three-day checkout from the Richard J. Brown Library, located in the Lakeside Center on the Nicolet Campus.

Cast members will rehearse most weeknights mid-March through early May. Public performances are scheduled for May 5 to 7 and May 11 to 14.

More details about the play, including portions of the script, are available at nicoletlive.com. Anyone with questions can also contact Nuttall at (715) 365-4476, or by email at jnuttall@nicoletcollege.edu.

Well owners encouraged to be vigilant as the seasons change

MADISON -- Warming temperatures, snow melt, residual frozen ground and rain can create conditions that may affect private wells and drinking water.

"Our recent round of snow, rain and mixed precipitation throughout the state serves as a reminder that changing spring weather can lead to well contamination," said Marty Nessman, DNR private water supply field supervisor. "At this time of year we encourage well owners to watch for signs of flooding and note any change in the color, smell or taste of their drinking water."

Owners who see flood waters very near or over their wells should assume their water could be contaminated. Take the following steps:

Stop drinking the water and find another safe source.

Once the waters recede, make sure the well is properly disinfected.

Before drinking the water again, sample the well to assure the water is safe.

Flood waters and rain runoff may contain bacteria and other contaminants that can affect water supplies and cause illness. Wells located in pits, basements and low-lying areas are especially susceptible to contamination.

Nessman said disinfection and sampling is best done by a licensed well driller or pump installer. Any water supply system that has been submerged by flood waters should be pumped out once the floodwater recedes, then thoroughly disinfected and tested to determine that the water is safe.

To ensure safe drinking water, well owners are encouraged to learn whether they have a properly constructed well and test it annually for bacteria. More information on bacteriological contamination of drinking water wells, along with lists of licensed well drillers, pump installers and labs certified to analyze water samples can be found by searching the DNR website, dnr.wi.gov for wells.

For individuals who receive drinking water from a public water supply, these systems are designed and operated to keep out contaminants. If you have concerns about the safety of your community's drinking water, contact your public water supplier.

12,850 permits awarded for 2017 black bear hunt

MADISON - Notifications have been sent to 12,850 hunters who successfully drew a black bear permit for the 2017 hunting season.

Successful applicants should have received a postcard in the mail - status updates are also available at gowild.wi.gov (exit DNR).

This year's harvest quota of 5,000, approved by the Natural Resources Board at its January 2017 meeting, was set with the intention of reducing the population in northwest Wisconsin and stabilizing the population in the rest of the state. The 2017 quota and permit levels will both see an increase compared to those approved in 2016.

The season structure for this year's bear hunt is as follows:

Zone C (dogs not permitted):
Sept. 6 to Oct. 10 - with aid of bait and all other legal methods not using dogs.

All other zones (use of dogs permitted):
Sept. 6-12 - with aid of dogs only;
Sept. 14 to Oct. 4 - with aid of bait, dogs, and all other legal methods; and

Oct. 5-11 - with aid of bait and all other legal methods not using dogs.

For more information, search the DNR website, dnr.wi.gov, for keyword "bear."

Chicago comedy improv group Baby Wants Candy to perform at Nicolet College March 11

Top-shelf comedy straight from Chicago will return to the Nicolet College Theatre when the popular improv troupe Baby Wants Candy ventures north for another hilarious and rambunctious performance at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, March 11.

"This is one of the hottest and most innovative comedy troupes out there right now," said Nicolet College Theatre director Jim Nuttall. "What they do on stage and how they make up these absolutely hilarious stories on the spot really is creative entertainment at its highest level."

A unique twist will include a dozen area high school students performing with the professional comedy troupe for about the first half hour of the show.

"The afternoon before the performance the students will participate in a three-hour comedy workshop led by a few veteran members of Baby Wants Candy," Nuttall explained. "Then come show time, they'll be up on stage with the entire cast showing us what they've got. Last year this was great fun and highly entertaining and I fully expect it will be the same this year."

The second half of the show will feature audience members shouting out names of musicals that have never been performed before. The troupe then uses these audience-inspired titles as the theme for an on-the-spot original improv musical.

Over the years, the traveling troupe has performed more than 2,000 shows to sold out audiences from Singapore to Edinburgh and New York City to Los Angeles.

They've been hailed as the "Best comedy in Chicago" by Chicago Magazine and described as a Saturday Night Live-caliber comedy troupe. Their show last year at Nicolet was a sell-out and Nuttall said he expects the same this year.

For the first time, wine and beer will be sold before the performance and at intermission in the Bytes commons area next to the theatre.

Tickets for Baby Wants Candy are $15 and can be ordered online at nicoletlive.com or by calling (715) 365-4646.
